The historical and cultural roots of loyalty everywhere - Temple of Literature - World Wide Blog - World Wide Reader Network (Computer Version)

Since the opening of the epidemic at the end of 2022, with the withdrawal of foreign capital, the contraction of foreign trade and the blockade of high-tech from the outside world, the internal economy has begun to decline, and real estate prices and stock prices have fallen steadily. Aid to Russia and overseas large-Sa currency have led to the depletion of foreign exchange in circulation, a large number of enterprises have closed down, unemployment has risen repeatedly, and migrant workers have wandered around. The number of bankruptcies of the urban middle class has soared, and hundreds of millions of people have fallen into a debt crisis. The direct result is that many people sleep along the street and begin to run around for three meals. Under such an environment, it is not surprising that all kinds of social contradictions have intensified and the crime rate has soared. However, vicious mass murders in the mainland have occurred frequently recently, and they target innocent people, young and old, which is surprising or puzzling. There is a head of injustice and a master of debt. Why do you vent your anger everywhere? Therefore, all kinds of media call it the "loyal phenomenon", which has predicted that the indiscriminate killing of innocent people will be on fire, and it may erupt like a volcano and spread to all levels of society.

Who is Xianzhong? According to Wikipedia, Zhang Xianzhong (September 18, 1606 - January 2, 1647), surnamed Bingwu, nicknamed Jingxuan, also called the Eight Great Kings, was born in Weiliu Shujian, Yan'an, Shaanxi Province (now Liuqu Village, Haotan Town, Dingbian County, Yulin City, Shaanxi Province). He was one of the leaders of the People's Rebulgion at the end of the Ming Dynasty. He called himself the Emperor of Daxi, mainly ceding his base in Sichuan. . Later, because the killing was too rand indiscriminate, it was not popular with the people, and the rule was shaken, and it was annihilated by the Qing Dynasty government.

In the late Ming Dynasty, there were more than one million descendants of the royal family derived from the previous dynasty in various places. Coupled with the stripping of the descendants of palace ministers, the ordinary people could not survive. Although the imperial court had a large army and the minions "East Factory" desperately suppressed it, filling the stomach was the most basic survival rule of humans and animals, so the signs of rebellions in various places erupted like volcanoes. At the same time, Li Zicheng basically succeeded in rebelling. Unlike Zhang Xianzhong's indiscriminate killing of innocent people, the former "loving the people like a son" created his reputation of "breaking into the king without grain". What does Li rely on to support himself? Of course, it is mainly to strengthen its own Dashun army by grabbing local tycoons and squires and government officials.

The government of the imperial court is getting less and less silver, but the persecution and the purification are increasing layer by layer, which provokes public grievances. The official army and the East Factory can't issue salary, and naturally they will not do longer do hard. Finally, with a little carelessness or complaint, the officers and soldiers would turn to the rebel army, such as Wu Sangui, who joined hands with overseas hostile forces (belonging to the territory at the beginning of the Ming Dynasty) and finally shook the rule of the dynasty.

Many people don't know very well that the million royal families of the Zhu family are distributed all over China and have enjoyed hundreds of years of glory and wealth, but few of them were massacred in the end. When the Manchu Qing Dynasty was close to the fall, they were completely obedient, and they were forced to give up the rule of the dynasty. Tens of millions of Manchus disappeared almost overnight, basically avoiding large-scale massacres. However, there is still the phenomenon of "slaughtering the city" of the Manchus in various places. This historical fact is rarely mentioned by both the official and the private, but the Manchu people have passed down by word of mouth that they basically dressed up as Han nationality, and it was not until recently that some people dared to reveal their background.

The phenomenon of loyalty everywhere is not only in China. In the period of underdevelopment of human civilization, there were different degrees of appearance or popularity in various ethnic groups. Today's world is very different from the past. The level of education has improved, the connection with globalization is getting closer and closer, and China has become the world's second largest economy. Information technology, artificial intelligence and other scientific and technological levels have been at the forefront of the world, but why will the phenomenon of loyalty reappear? Will these evil deeds be blocked by high technology or more seriously uncontrollable? How to prevent or avoid? It is not enough to predict the trend of indiscriminate killing of innocent people. We can predict the trend of the drastic changes in mainland society through vertical and horizontal comparative research of Chinese and foreign precedents, simple combing and clarifying some chaotic descriptions.

First of all, the two most basic problems must be clarified, all of which are related to the mouth. Will mainland China be self-suffient in food in the future? The answer is obviously negative. There is a lot of evidence about relying on imports, so there is no need to say. Who can guarantee that it will not be blocked or have enough foreign exchange to buy in the future? Some people may argue that under the principle of completely fair distribution, many people will not starve to death in the next few years just by relying on self-production. That's right, but I won't be full. The problem is that under the condition of unfair distribution (which is already an intractable disease that is difficult to change), hundreds of millions of people will begin to worry about food and clothing. There is no sign of improvement in the economic prospects of the mainland. At present, it will only become more and more serious, and it will be difficult to end. At the end of the Ming Dynasty, the government did not have silver taels, but after Li Zicheng and the Qing army entered the capital, the powerful in the capital offered a large amount of hidden wealth. Today's situation is exactly the same as that of that year. Many perpetrators are not without food tomorrow, but worried about their livelihood and no hope.

Many people will say that listening to the news, there is chaos everywhere abroad, there are many troubles, and gunfire is everywhere, but it is the quiet and happy land in the world in China. This is precisely the illusion caused by information manipulation under different cultures and systems. Take the United States as an example, the media is responsible for detonating or exaggerating negative news to promote people's alertness and correction, but no one cares about many good things. Many things are exaggerated ten times, a hundred times, as if tomorrow is the end of the world; but in a totalitarian countries, on the contrary, bad or ugly things are compressed ten times, a hundred times, and even funerals are happy, on the contrary. Without the truth, over time, the people will not even believe the truth. For example, in the recent Zhuhai driving murder case, officials said that 35 people were killed, but the public doubted the number, because news fraud has long become the norm.

Daming used the East Factory to shut up, and today, the wall or countless high-tech nets blocked the mouth, and the result was the same. The rumors became more and more closed, and the code was added layer by layer. In the end, the real one was also fake, and the fake became true. All the mouths can't be filled in, and they are not allowed to say it. Where can the accumulated fire in the heart be vented? Covering up and lying can only save a moment, but it will bury the fire of more anger, and finally go to the road of venting in a vicious circle. In a word, under the existing system, these two problems on the mouth cannot be solved, and the "phenomenon of loyalty" should not stop, or the momentum of ignation is inevitable.

There are other factors, mostly cultural phenomena unique to mainland society, which have also greatly promoted the "phenomenon of loyalty". Confucian culture teaches people to be patient, and if they endure, they will become superior. Chinese people's tolerance is famous all over the world, but being able to endure does not mean that there is no anger. The three-year toss of zeroing the virus has allowed those in power to taste the bottom line that the modern mainland people have almost no tolerance. It turns out that the ancestors' Shang Yang's five skills of control of the people are the most precious wealth of China. Draw a cake, if it's not big enough, and then continue to draw it. The group of servants will only keep bowing down to thank you, but on the condition that they can enjoy the meal. It's a pity that man's calculation is not as good as God's calculation. After doing more injustice, the public's livelihood is broken. No matter how good the system is, it can only fall into the garbage time of history and cannot extricate itself.

Chaotic values are another factor that cannot be ignored. Since the founding of the government, Li Zicheng, Zhang Xianzhong and many other pirates of all generations have been touted as "national heroes". Killing corrupt officials, fighting local tycoons, and divering the fields, sleeping with their wives is a major event in life for heaven and shining. These ideas are quite popular among the people at the bottom. The people of Western countries, on the other hand, are widely bound by religion, and do not have much burden of survival by relying on face. However, when the mainland's middle production suddenly becomes proletal and negative, it can't live up to the social expectations of the world. The impulse to lose hope and reason, coupled with the outstanding "personal charm" of the relatively grass-roots people, can quickly incite the low-level people and become the repeated "grass-roots heroes" in history. They don't need to wait for the moment of starvation. When they have money to buy an off-road vehicle, they will rush to the crowd.

There is a puzzling phenomenon that is rare or rare in other parts of the world or in some animal worlds. Both humans and animals have social attributes. In order to survive, they often report to the group to keep warm, and struggle desperately to grab food from their opponents. The first priority of the same kind is to reproduce one's own descendants. It is natural that they will not kill their compatriots at will. The survival rules of higher creatures such as injustice, debt, revenge is not fully feasible in the mainland. Zhang Xianzhong in history is an example, but why is it getting worse in the peace era of the mainland? This is a topic worth discussing. Are some races not as good as the thinking, consciousness or logic of some higher animals (assuming that animals also have basic similar survival attributes)? It is not uncommon in modern society to take revenge on their own kind and vent their personal hatred. However, the use of massacres to treat people who had nothing to do with the same race mostly occurred in the Middle Ages. In recent years, interracial conflicts or massacres have been mostly related to wars, territorial disputes, etc.

When I was young, I read Lu Xun's article about the "cannibal" culture of the Chinese people. At that time, my understanding was very superficial. I thought that the so-called cannibal was only about internal fighting and mutual consumption. Later, I gradually realized that things were not so simple. Especially the understanding of some families, it is found that Chinese people are very good-looking, polite, lite and reasonable, and seem to be extremely normal model husbands or wives. If you observe carefully for a long time, you will find that most of them have a great difference between the inside and the outside, and life is acting. They have uncontrollable habits: the more humble, obedient and excessive courtesy they are, the more vicious they treat their families and have a complete desire to control. This kind of unconscious dual or multiple personality is not uncommon. Later, I encountered more such examples in the workplace. They were coquettish and fierce to their subordinates. On most occasions, they would cover up for the face, but when they were in a hurry, they changed their faces quickly, revealing their inner perversion. Therefore, the "success" of the career in China should be a servile personality and a perverted outlook on life.

In that soil, there are not many upright, rational and bloody men. Only Weiwei Nuo is used to it, and it is obedient. Over time, it can't withstand any storms. Their characteristic is that they never dare to commit it, or focus on finding soft persimmons. Even at the last minute of life and death, they will not change their original intention. In this way, after rising to the highest power, he will also be "cowardly to the outside and strong and domineering to the inside" to achieve psychological balance, which is a popular mentality recognized by most people. There has been a long-study in psychology. They need to have a compensatory role and find an outlet to vent their anger, which has become an insurmountable human vice. Under the long-term institutional and hate education, coupled with the usual influence of family and workplace, many people unconsciously follow the inner perverted trajectory. I'm distressed and in a bad mood. Why don't you feel it? Criminals are used to illogical emotional thinking, which is exactly the group cognitive goal that their educators have been working hard to achieve. Of course, the author understands that individuals of other ethnic groups do not rule out that there is a similar phenomenon. The above observations do not fully explain all the phenomena of loyalty, that is, their motives and the randomness of the crime.

People admit that negative emotions such as bad comfort, failure, and anger have led to the indiscriminate killing of innocent people. However, during the Great Famine in the late 1950s and early 1960s, although a large number of people starved to death, it seems that many large-scale vicious events have never been heard. At that time, there were no current means of communication. After a vicious incident, such as cannibalism, the outside world could not know the truth. In addition, many people could not escape from the countryside, and historical facts became "rumors" of the past. In cities, especially in big cities, there is a distribution system to ensure that the fundamentals will not collapse. Now that the integration of urban and rural areas has taken shape, the number of educated young people is increasing, and the past control methods have been invalidated. At present, the crime mainly occurs in small and medium-sized cities with slightly lax control. It is worth continuing to observe whether it will spread to big cities or villages.

In Chinese society before the "three-year disaster", the relationship between people still retains the traditional human kindness. Subsequently, after the baptism of the "Maple Bridge Experience" of fighting people, the class struggle of the Four Qing Dynasties and the ten-year Cultural Revolution, etc., the traditional values of Chinese society have completely collapsed, and the coldness, distrust and mutual trampling between people have become the norm. A society without faith and basic human values has unfortunately experienced more than 40 years of commercial self-intempt baptism. This state or scarring society is unique in the world, so loyalty everywhere may also be a unique national phenomenon. A powerful and invincible group of people suddenly encounters a setback that is not so great. How to face the psychological loss and embarrassment?

Perhaps some people will compare the phenomenon of loyalty with the situation abroad, which is very attractive to those who live only by emotional thinking, because it can comfort their fragile minds. Examples can be given to poor and rich countries. For example, both East Africa and Indonesia have had racial massacres due to social division. They are all powers that direct the spearhead of venting to foreigners to relieve pressure for themselves. Japanese, overseas Chinese, etc., may become the target of domestic loyalty. Recently, the rebellion of the common people in Bangladesh directly aimed at the government's hawks and dogs, shocking the world. Things are sad, but it is more or less a normal rational society that can regulate people's psychology. Looking at the Great Depression in the United States, there was no large-scale loyalty phenomenon, and the frequent shootings that were ridiculed by the Chinese people continued for many years for many years, and there was no abnormal unified motive and soil of the above-mentioned group disappointment. As mentioned above, the shooting frequency is infinitely amplified and rendered by the media. Think about it with rational thinking. Where can the phenomenon of loyalty be compared at will today?

A car in Lanzhou suddenly accelerated and hit people at the intersection!

At about 3:30 p.m. on November 26, in Lanzhou, Gansu Province, a white car suddenly accelerated and knocked down several pedestrians who were crossing the road while turning and drove away. In the process of escape, three more pedestrians were injured. The official announcement said that the perpetrator had been caught and the injured had been sent to the hospital for treatment, but the reason for the incident was not explained.

On November 25, 2024, 7 hours ago, a bus driver in China's Neijiang crashed into a passerby for 3 kilometers along the road, killing at least 20 people.

On November 23, in Xuzhou, Jiangsu Province, a white car on the Peace Bridge suddenly crashed into a crowd riding a battery car on a non-motorized road. Cars are out of control everywhere all over the country. Is it just people's emotional out of control? Is it just that the economic downturn is out of control? Isn't the whole society out of control?

On November 23, Hunan, a large truck was loyal: it crashed all the way, lasting more than ten kilometers, and more than 300 people died! However, the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China has issued a stern warning that if there are any car collisions in various places, the information must be controlled as soon as possible. Without the special approval of the central government, it is not allowed to broadcast! As long as there is no spread, there is no harm! I feel that the wave of loyalty in China will soon cause cases of loyalty by train and plane.

Liaoning is now hitting people indiscriminately! Netizen: The bumps are all rich people this time! On November 22, a car knocked several people to the ground in the square outside Tong Erbao Fur City, Beacon County, Liaoyang City, Liaoning Province. The specific casualties are unknown. Netizen: Wearing fur, especially mink and other clothes, is a symbol of wealth in the northeast, so the people who are hit this time may be rich.

At about 21:00 p.m. on November 22, 2024, a vehicle crashed into pedestrians in Wandalibao Square in Yangzhou. The police have been preventing taking photos or pre-videos! At this stage, the information in China is strictly locked, and WeChat private chat cannot send relevant film and television resources! So far, the specific number of casualties is unknown!

At 8 a.m. on November 19, 2024, another car hit a student at the gate of Yong'an Primary School in Dingcheng District, Changde, Hunan Province, China. The on-site medical staff said that 39 children died on the spot, and the driver crashed along the horse road for 2 kilometers, and the bodies and injuries were countless. In five days, there have been nine serious car loyalty incidents in China. Moreover, this behavior has caused a lot of imitations throughout China.

At 7:30 a.m. on November 21, 2024, at the gate of Foshan Middle School in Guangdong Province, a bus crashed directly into the students who entered the school in the morning. The scene was full of dead and injured, which was unbearable! Witnesses said that the ambulance drove more than 20 times, and the casualties are unknown at present! The news was blocked by the whole network! The highlight is that the mother and son who escaped by chance smiled! There is a head of debt and a master. When you go out and turn left, you will find the government! Please don't hurt the innocent!

中国最缺的是基础文明

英国外交家密迪乐，
1856年调查太平天国暴乱、目睹凌迟酷刑后，
写成《中国人及其叛乱》一书。
他说：“中国现在最需要的并不是现代科技，
而是基础文明。
所谓基础文明，包括契约精神、权利意识、
以及对民主政治、个人自由的认知。”
悲哀的是，170年过去了，
这些普世价值，仍是中国社会最缺乏的！
